The mutant is encoded by an SCN5A mutant gene carrying a deletion of the TTC codon for Phe-1617. Mutations of the SCN5A gene are implicated in Romano-Ward syndrome, the autosomal dominant form of Long QT syndrome (LQTS). Mutations newly discovered in the SCN5A gene lead to the following amino acid alterations in the encoded protein: D1114N, L1501V, delF1617, R1621J, E1794K and S1787N. Knowledge of the mutations provides means for assessing a risk in a human subject for LQTS, for diagnosing a mutation which causes LQTS, and for screening for drugs useful in treating a human having a mutation in the SCN5A gene. Note: The present sequence is not shown in the specification but is derived from the KVLQT-1 sequence given in the Sequence Listing (see AAB82220)

It may also be used to develop more effective antiarrythmic, cardiant and cardioglycoside drugs. In Figure 2, the sequence is compared to the deduced amino acid sequence of rat brair cDNA. The invention relates to polymucleotides (I) encoding diagnostic and therapeutic (DITHP) polypeptides (II), which include e.g. enzymes, and CC proteins involved in growth and development and receptors. (I) and (II) CC may be used in the prevention, diagnosis and treatment of diseases CC associated with inappropriate DITHP expression. For example, (I) and (II) CC expression by rectifying mutations or deletions in a pattent's genome, CC that affect the activity of the DITHPs, by expressing inactive proteins or supplementing the patient's own production of them. (I) and (II) may be used to treat diseases, for example, cell proliferative disorder. (CC (I) may be used to produce the DITHPs, by inserting the proteins CC (I) may be used to produce the DITHPs, by inserting the nucleic acids into a host cell and culturing the cell to express the protein. (I) and (II) and (II) may be used to produce the DITHPs, by inserting the nucleic acids in the complementary sequences may also be used as DNA probes in diagnostic cassays to detect and quantitate the presence of similar nucleic acids in samples, (II) may also be used as antigens in the production of CC antibodies against DITHPs and inserting the nucleic acids in the approach of the anti-DITHP antibodies and antagonists may also be used as antigens in the production of CC antibodies may also be used as antigens in the production of CC antibodies may also be used as antisons and activity. The anti-DITHP antibodies and antagonists may also be used as diagnostic agents for detecting the cCC presence of DITHPs in samples (e.g. by enzyme linked immunosorbant assay (BLISA)). AAU19415-AAU19625 represent human diagnostic and therapeutic (DITHP) polypeptides of the invention

                                                                                                                                 The present sequence is that of a novel splice variant of the human CC sodium III channel alpha subunit, denoted hNAIII8. The cDNA was cloned CC by RT-PCR from human embryonic brain total RNA using human NaIII specific CC primers ADP79546-ADP79547. The hNaIIIB sequence contains an additional CC variant of residues that do not appear in a previously reported human CC NaIII ADP79543, and also differs from a previously reported splice CC variant of human sodium channel alpha subunit ADP79545 by 12 amino acids out of 2000. Transient transfection of HEX293 cells by hNaIII18 resulted CC in expression of functional sodium channels. The invention provides: CC hNaIII18 proteins and their fragments and derivatives; hNaIII18 encoding nucleic acids and their fragments including primers, probes, and CC regulatory sequences; hNaIII18-specific antibodies; and methods of using CC these materials to detect the presence of hNaIII18 proteins or nucleic acids. The invention also provides an assay method for screening to certain the invention also provides an assay method for screening to conditions associated with sodium channel CC over- or under-expression, e.g. for treatment of cardiac arrhythmia, CC neuronal disorders, nociceptive pain-related diseases and neuropathic pain-related diseases, e.g. pain from peripheral nerve trauma, herpes crims infection, diabetes mellitus, causalgia, plexus avulsion, neuroma, individual's predisposition to epilepsy and/or development of epilepsy, as well as predicting the individual's response to medication. The method comprises determining the genotype of at least one gene selected from SCNIA, SCN2A or SCNIA, or a DNA variant, equivalent, or mutation which shows a linkage disequilibrium. SCNIA, SCN2A and SCN3A are all sodium channel genes located on chromosome 2. The idiopathic generalised epilepsy (IGE) gene is more specifically localised on chromosome 203-q31. Compounds identified as modulators of the biological activity of SCNIA, SCN2A or SCN3A proteins or genes, are useful for treating epilepsy or other neuroprotective activities. AAH55763 to AAH56164 and AAB99674 to AAB99679 represent SCNIA, SCN2A, and SCN3A CDNAs, gene fragments, PCR primers, oligonucleotides and proteins given in the exemplification of the present invertine. present invention describes a method (M1) of determining an

CC polypeptide which is a mutant or variant ion channel subunit (including a country and recurred in C terminal CC mutant KCNQ2 subunit, where the mutation event has occurred in C terminal CC affinity of the subunit and leads to disturbance in the calmodulin binding CC affinity of the subunit and 2) an expression vector, cells, antibodies CC and a method for producing a non-human transgenic animal which are all C used for screening of candidate pharmaceutical agents for diagnosing or treating epilepsy or a disorder associated with ion channel dysfunction. CC assembled ion channel so as to produce an epilepsy phenotype in the C subject or produces one or more disorders associated with ion channel dysfunction. CC migraine, Alzheimer's disease, Parkinson's disease, myotonias, myotonias, companiant hyperthermia, myasthenia, cardiac arrhythmias, episodic ataxia, CC migraine, Alzheimer's disease, Parkinson's disease, schizophrenia, cardiac arrhythmias, episodic ataxia, CC migraine, bent's disease, Parkinson's disease, schizophrenia, cardiac arrhythmias, episodic ataxia, CC migraine, bent's disease, hyperinsulinemic hypoglycemia of infancy, cystic fibrosis, congenital stationary night blindness and total color-color color in the subject or to produce an epilepsy phenotype when cc expressed in combination with one or more additional mutations or variations in the ion channel subunit genes. The products of the containt in the subject or to produce an epilepsy phenotype when cc antiparking, antimated and cytostatic activity. This sequence represents a fragment of the human sodium ion channel subunit SCN2A encoded by exon 16 which contains the

Identifying subject predisposed to disorder associated with ion dysfunction, involves determining presence of specific mutation genes encoding ion channel subunits. event channel

Claim 20; SEQ ID NO 85; 347pp; English.

This invention describes a novel method of identifying a subject comprising ascertaining whether at least one of the genes encoding ion channel subunits in the subject has undergone a mutation. The invention channel subunits in the subject has undergone a mutation. The invention control of the genes encoding in isolated nucleic acid molecules encoding an isolated control of the subunit is a mutant or variant ion channel subunit (including a control of the subunit) and 2) an expression vector, cells, antibodies and finity of the subunit) and 2) an expression vector, cells, antibodies and a method for producing a non-human transgenic animal which are all used for screening of candidate pharmaceutical agents for diagnosing or treating epilepsy or a disorder associated with ion channel dysfunction. The mutation detected in the method disrupts the functioning of an expression of the subject or produces one or more disorders associated with ion channel grains the subject or produce an epilepsy phenotype in the subject or produces one or more disorders associated with ion channel can anisorately, depression, phobic obsessive symptoms, neuropathic pain, can inflammabory pain, chronic/acute pain, Bartter's syndrome, polycystic kidney disease, Dent's disease, hyperinsulinemic hypoglycemia of infancy, cystic fibrosis, congenital stationary night blindness and total colorcystic fibrosis, congenital stationary night blindness and total colorcystic fibrosis, congenital stationary night blindness and total colorcystic fibrosis, on channel subunit genes. The products of the contains on channel subunit genes and total colorcystic intention with one can more additional mutations or the compensation, analyses, antidabetic and cytostatic activity. This sequence represents a fragment of the human contains the mutation of channel subunit SCN2A encoded by exon 17 which contains the

The gene is useful for diagnosing GEFS+. The present sequence represents the human GEFS+ protein sequence with SCN2A

Cc neuroleptic, tranquiliser, analgesic, nephrotropic, antidiabetic, and cc ophthalmological activity. A polynucleotide of the invention acts as an cc ophthalmological activity. A polynucleotide of the invention acts as an cc on channel agonist, or ion channel antagonist. The methods, isolated cc mucleic acids, polypeptides, antibody, selective agonist, antagonist or modulator of an ion channel, cells and genetically modified non-human cc animal, are useful for the diagnosis and treatment of epilepsy and/or a cc disorder associated with ion channel dysfunction, such as hyper- or hypocompasthenia, cardiac arrhythmias, episodic ataxia, migraine, Alzheimer's compasthenia, cardiac arrhythmias, episodic ataxia, migraine, Alzheimer's compasted in chronic/acute pain, Bartter's symptoms, neuropathic pain, inflammatory compain, chronic/acute pain, Bartter's symptoms, neuropathic pain, inflammatory compain, chronic/acute pain, Bartter's symptoms, polycystic kidney disease, companis disease, hyperinsulinaemic hypoglycaemia of infancy, cystic companists, congenital stationary night blindness and total colour companisms. The present sequence represents a mutant protein of the companism of the sequence data for this patent is not represented in the crimted specification, but was obtained in electronic format directly from WIPO at ftp.wipo.int/pub/published_pat_sequences. channel subunits (ICS) has undergone a mutation event so that a CDNA derived from the subject has any of 134 nucleotide sequences. The method of the invention has nootropic, neuroprotective, inotropic, antipyretic, antiarrhythmic, antimigraine, antidepressant, antiparkinsonian, predisposed comprises ç relates relates to a novel method for identifying a subject a disorder associated with ion channel dysfunction. es ascertaining if at least one of the genes encoding encoding

CC channel subunits (ICS) has undergone a mutation event so that a cDNA CC derived from the subject has any of 134 nucleotide sequences. The method CC antiarrhythmic, antingraine, antiageressant, antiparkineonian, CC antiarrhythmic, antingraine, antiageressant, antiparkineonian, CC neuroleptic, tranquiliser, analgesic, nephrotropic, antidiabetic, and CC ophthalmological activity. A polymucleotide of the invention acts as an CC ion channel agonist, or ion channel antagonist. The methods, isolated CC nucleic acids, polypeptides, antibody, selective agonist, antagonist or CC modulator of an ion channel, cells and genetically modified non-human CC animal, are useful for the diagnosis and treatment of epilepsy and/or a CC disorder associated with ion channel dysfunction, such as hyper- or hypock kalemic periodic paralysis, myotonias, malignant hyperthermia, cardiac arrhythmias, episodic ataxia, migraine, Alzheimer's CC myasthenia, cardiac arrhythmias, episodic ataxia, migraine, Alzheimer's CC disease, Parkinson's disease, schizophrenia, hypertplexia, anxiety, congenital stationary night blindness and total colour CC fibrosis, congenital stationary night blindness and total colour CC invention. The sequence data for this patent is not represented in the CC printed specification, but was obtained in electronic format directly from WIPO at ftp.wipo.int/pub/published_pat_sequences. predisposed to vention relates to a novel method for identifying a subject posed to a disorder associated with ion channel dysfunction. comprises ascertaining if at least one of the genes encoding ion

Identifying predisposition to an ion channel dysfunction, such as periodic paralysis, cardiac arrhythmias, migraine, Alzheimer's dischizophrenia, anxiety and dépression, by detecting encoding-gene events disease,

Claim 13; SEQ ID ğ 149; 106pp; English

The invention relates to a novel method for identifying a subject predisposed to a disorder associated with ion channel dysfunction. The CC method comprises ascertaining if at least one of the genes encoding ion CC channel subunits (ICS) has undergone a mutation event so that a cDNA CC derived from the subject has any of 134 nucleotide sequences. The method CC antiarrhythmic, antimigraine, antiagerssant, antiparkinsonian, CC neuroleptic, tranquiliser, analgesic, nephrotropic, antidiabetic, and CC ophthalmological activity. A polymucleotide of the invention acts as an CC ion channel agonist, or ion channel antagonist. The methods, isolated CC nucleic acids, polypeptides, antibody, selective agonist, antagonist or CC modulator of an ion channel, cells and genetically modified non-human CC animal, are useful for the diagnosis and treatment of epilepsy and/or a CC disorder associated with ion channel dysfunction, such as hyper- or hypo-cx alemic periodic paralysis, myotonias, malignant hyperthermia, CC myasthenia, cardiac arrhythmias, episodic attaxia, migraine, Alzheimer's CC disease, Parkinson's disease, schizophrenia, hyperkplexia, anxiety, CC depression, phobic obsessive symptoms, neuropathic pain, inflammatory CC depression, phobic obsessive symptoms, neuropathic pain, inflammatory CC depression, phobic obsessive symptoms, neuropathic pain, inflammatory CC depression, phobic obsessive symptoms, polycystic kidney disease, fibrosis, congenital stationary night blindness and total colour CC blindness. The present sequence represents a mutant protein of the CC invention. The sequence data for this patent is not represented in the CC printed specification, but was obtained in electronic format directly CC from wipo at ftp.wipo.int/pub/published_pat_sequences.

The method comprises detecting the level and/or activity of a transcription or translation product of the gene coding for the voltage-gated ion channel SCN2A. The modulator of an activity and/or of a level of at least one substance is useful for preparing a composition for treating or preventing a neurodegenerative disease, in particular Alzheimer's disease. The current sequence represents the human SCN2A amino acid sequence.

The invention enables diagnosis of obstinacy childhood epilepsy accompanying regression of serious mental illness, by detection of a mutation in a gene, and thus contributes to the development of treatment methods. The present sequence is that of the protein encoded by the human sodium channel type II (SCN2A) gene of the

Identifying subject predisposed to disorder associated with ion channel dysfunction, involves determining presence of specific mutation event in genes encoding ion channel subunits.

Claim 20; SEQ ID NO 87; 347pp; English.

This invention describes a novel method of identifying a subject CC predisposed to disorder associated with ion channel dysfunction CC comprising ascertaining whether at least one of the genes encoding ion CC channel Shbunits in the subject has undergone a mutation. The invention CC also describes 1) isolated nucleic acid molecules encoding an isolated CC polypeptide which is a mutant or variant ion channel subunit (including a CC mutant KCNQ2 subunit, where the mutation event has occurred in C terminal CC domain of the subunit and leads to disturbance in the calmodulin binding CC affinity of the subunit and 2) an expression vector, cells, antibodies CC and a method for producing a non-human transgenic animal which are all C used for screening of candidate pharmaceutical agents for diagnosing or treating epilepsy or a disorder associated with ion channel dysfunction. CC insembled ion channel so as to produce an epilepsy phenotype in the C subject or produces one or more disorders associated with ion channel dysfunction such as hyper- or hypo-kalemic periodic paralysis, myotonias, c mistary, depression, phobic obsessive symptoms, neuropathic pain, CC inflammatory pain, chronic/acute pain, Bartter's syndrome, polycystic C kidney disease, bent's disease, hyperinsulinemic hypoglycemia of inflammatory pain, chronic/acute pain, Bartter's syndrome, polycystic C kidney disease, bent's disease, hyperinsulinemic hypoglycemia of inflamacy. CC expressed in combination with one or more additional mutations or complete co

This invention describes a novel method of identifying a subject CC predisposed to disorder associated with ion channel dysfunction CC comprising ascertaining whether at least one of the genes encoding ion CC channel subunits in the subject has undergone a mutation. The invention CC also describes 1) isolated nucleic acid molecules encoding an isolated CC polypeptide which is a mutant or variant ion channel subunit (including a finity of the subunit) and 2) an expression vector, cells, antibodies and finity of the subunit) and 2) an expression vector, cells, antibodies CC and a method for producing a non-human transgenic animal which are all used for screening of candidate pharmaceutical agents for diagnosing or treating epilepsy or a disorder associated with ion channel dysfunction. CC The mutation detected in the method disrupts the functioning of an assembled ion channel so as to produce an epilepsy phenotype in the subject or produces one or more disorders associated with ion channel dysfunction such as hyper- or hypo-kalemic periodic paralysis, myoconias, migraine, Alzheimer's disease, Parkinson's disease, schizophrenia, cardiac arrhythmias, episodic ataxia, inflammatory pain, chronic/acute pain, Bartter's syndrome, polycystic kidney disease, congenital stationary night blindness and total color-cystic fibrosis, congenital stationary night blindness and total color-cystic fibrosis, congenital stationary night blindness and total color-cystic fibrosis in the ion channel subunit genes. The products of the conventions in the ion channel subunit genes. The products of the inventions in the ion channel subunit genes. The products of the convention have anticonvulsant, muscular-cen, neuroprotective, anticarking ainse.

The present invention describes a method (M1) of determining an CC individual's predisposition to epilepsy and/or development of epilepsy. CC as well as predicting the individual's response to medication. The method CC comprises determining the genotype of at least one gene selected from CC SCNIA, SCNZA or SCNJA, or a DNA variant, equivalent, or mutation which CC shows a linkage disequilibrium. SCNIa, SCNZA and SCNJA are all sodium CC channel genes located on chromosome 2. The idiopathic generalised CC epilepsy (IGE) gene is more specifically localised on chromosome 2023-CC q31. Compounds identified as modulators of the biological activity of CC SCNIA, SCNZA or SCNJA proteins or genes, are useful for treating epilepsy CC contemporatective activities. AAH55763 to AAH56164 and AAB99674 to AAB99679 CC represent SCNIA, SCNZA, and SCNJA cDNAs, gene fragments, PCR primers, CO oligonucleotides and proteins given in the exemplification of the present

Criminal invention describes a novel method of identifying a subject comprising ascertaining whether at least one of the genes encoding ion channel subunits in the subject has undergone a mutation. The invention control of the genes encoding ion commend to the subunit of the subunit or variant ion channel subunit (including a polypeptide which is a mutant or variant ion channel subunit (including a command of the subunit and leads to disturbance in the calmodulin binding a fifinity of the subunit and leads to disturbance in the calmodulin binding command of the subunit and leads to disturbance in the calmodulin binding a fifinity of the subunit and leads to disturbance in the calmodulin binding command of the subunit and leads to disturbance in the calmodulin binding command of the subunit and leads to disturbance in the calmodulin binding command of the subunit and leads to disturbance in the calmodulin binding command of the subunit and leads to disturbance in the calmodulin binding command of the subunit and leads to disturbance in the calmodulin binding of an expension of the method disturbance in the functioning of an expension of the mutation detected in the method disrupts the functioning of an expension of the mutation detected in the method disrupts the functioning of an expension such as hyper or a disorders associated with ion channel subject or produce an epilepsy phenotype in the cannel subject or to produce an epilepsy phenotype in the cannel subject or to produce arrhythmias, episodic ataxia, canding disease, bent's disease, byperinsulinemic hypoglycemia of infancy, cystic fibrosis, compenital stationary night bindness and total color bindness in the ion channel subunit genes. The present invention describes human sodium channels SCN1A and SCN3A. The present sequence represents the human sodium channel SCN3A. SCN1A and SCN3A have been located to the human chromosome 2 long arm, positions 2q24 and 2q24-31 respectively. The sodium channel proteins are useful in studying the physiological mechanism in which excitant cells participate and cause human diseases, and in developing remedies for e.g. familial hypercalcaemic periodic paralysis of extremities and motor endplate

The compound and composition are useful for treating a disease or condition associated with Nav1.3, e.g. pain including but not limited to neuropathic pain, post-herpetic neuralgia, chronic pain, lower back pain, diabetic neuropathy, trigeminal neuropathy, arthritic pain, acute pain, pain from burns, migraine headache, cluster headache, mid-to-moderate headache; seizure disorder such as childhood seizure disorder, including but not limited to neonatal or infantile epilepsy; or ataxia. The present sequence represents human Nav1.3 protein.

           The present sequence is that of a previously identified splice variant of the human sodium III channel polypeptide. The sequence differs from a company identified splice variant ADP79541 of the sodium III channel, company identified splice variant ADP79541 of the sodium III channel, company identified splice variant ADP79541 of the sodium III channel, company identified splice variant ADP79541 of the sodium III channel, company identified splice invention provides: company identified and their fragments and derivatives; hNAIIII8 expectified and methods company identified split fragments, including primers, probes, and methods company identified split fragments, including primers, probes, and methods company identified split fragments, including primers, probes, and methods company identified split fragments, including primers, probes, and methods company identified split fragments of hNAIIII8 expression or activity. Company identified split for treatment of conditions associated with sodium company identified and diseases, e.g. pain from peripheral nerve cannot company infection, diabetes mellitus, causalgia, plexus and annular memorars infection, diabetes mellitus, causalgia, plexus causalgia, plexus
